

OLD VETERANS TAKE DANVILLE

Every Train Brings Veterans for State Reunion of Grand Camp.

CONFEDERATE DAY AT FAIR

Thursday of This Week to Be Observed as Such—The Program.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) DANVILLE, VA., October 11.—This afternoon's and to-night trains brought into the city hundreds of Confederate veterans from every section of Virginia, who are here to attend the twenty-second annual reunion of the Grand Camp of Confederate Veterans of Virginia, which convenes here to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock, for a session of three days.

Among the visitors are many North Carolina veterans, who have been invited to attend and participate in the exercises.

The city is lavishly decorated in honor of the occasion, and huge streamers bearing the Stars and Bars meet one another at every point along the principal thoroughfares of the city. The homes of many citizens are decked and everywhere the spirit of the Confederacy abounds.

For months various committees have been at work planning for the celebration, and making the best of understandings to assure its success. This is the first time the Grand Encampment of Virginia has ever met in Danville, and owing to the fact that this city is termed the last capital of the Confederacy, the people here are taking a great deal of pride and enthusiasm in the coming event.

It was at the home of the late Major W. T. Sutherland, which has been invited to the last official meeting of his Cabinet before the surrender. This building, which is still standing, is along the line of the parade and has been lavishly decorated.

The delegates and visitors are being met at the station by a large reception committee and escorted to the Liberty Warehouse, a short distance from the railway station, where they are furnished with badges and assigned to quarters.

Homes for the delegates.
Homes for the several hundred delegates from the various camps throughout the State have been provided for in private families. Confederate quarters have also been secured for all of the veterans, who come to the city, whether they are delegates or not.

The opening session will be held in the Ridge Street Tabernacle, and will be presided over by Grand Commander E. B. Brooke, of Roanoke. The address of welcome will be delivered by Mayor Harry Wooding, the commander of the Cavalry Corps of the Confederate Veterans, of this city. Other prominent speakers include Governor Claude A.
Swanson, Judge Samuel W. Williams and Captain R. S. Parks, of Luray, Va.
The grand parade will take place on Wednesday, and will be participated in by the various local organizations.

The opening session of the Sons of Veterans will be held to-morrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the Ridge Street Tabernacle, and will be presided over by Commander W. G. Pritchard, of Newport News. The address of welcome will be made by Hon. Eugene Withers, of Danville. Other speakers for the Sons of Veterans will be Hon.
W. McDonald Lee, of Irvington; Hon.
E. Lee Trinkle, of Wytheville, and Hon.
J. Boyd Sears, of Mathews.

On Wednesday will be held the principal social events of the reunion.
Veterans include a reception at the home of Mrs. C. D. Noel to the visiting sponsors and mads of honor, and a reception at the home of Mrs. J. N. Wylie and Mrs.
W. D. Overby to the visiting sponsors and mads. The local chapters, Daughters of the Confederacy, will also hold a reception at the House Rock Country Club.

The Danville Fair opens on Wednesday, and Thursday will be observed as "Confederate Day," and the old soldiers given free tickets to the exhibitions.

PERSONALITIES FEW IN AMHERST DEBATE

Despite Rain, Good Crowd Hears Congressman Glass and Captain McCaul.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
AMHERST, VA., October 11.—Despite the heavy rains of to-day, a crowd that comfortably filled the courtroom was present and listened to a joint discussion between Congressman Carter Glass, of the Sixth District, representing the Democrats, and Hon. P. H. McCaul, of Lynchburg, representing the Republicans.

The meeting of these two prominent speakers in joint discussion had been well advertised, and but for the weather a crowd of several thousand people would have been on hand.

Almost All Democrats.
The audience was almost entirely Democratic, but they listened carefully to Captain McCaul's speech, and at times applauded him.

Quite a number of negroes were present at the meeting and quite enthusiastic in their cheering for Captain McCaul. Mr. Glass opened the discussion in a speech of one hour.
Mr. McCaul followed in a speech of one hour and twenty minutes. Mr.
Glass closed in twenty minutes.

Congressman Flood was on hand, but on account of the joint discussion, which had been agreed upon by Mr.
Glass and Captain McCaul, did not speak, except to introduce Mr. Glass.
County Chairman S. S. Allen, of the Republican party, introduced Captain McCaul. The meeting was called to order and the terms of the debate announced by Stickley Tucker, chairman of the Democratic party of this county.

Mr. Glass's opening speech was a severe attack upon the Republican party in Virginia, and a defense of the Democratic record. He contrasted the manner in which the Democratic candidates had nominated with that of the Republicans, the one in a free fight in a primary, the other by a convention at Newport News, made up of Federal office-holders. On the charge of bossism, the Democratic party was compared with the Republican party, which, he said, is absolutely bossed by Mr. Slemm, Mr. Glass charging that he controlled all of the Federal patronage in Virginia, and that post-offices in his district were farmed out to the highest bidders. Mr. Glass touched upon the establishment of the Underwood Constitutional Convention in the question of public education. He showed from the record that, in that convention, and also in the succeeding Legislature, the Republican members had favored the establishment of mixed schools. In the question of increased expenditures, he contrasted the Democratic record with that of the Republican party, which in six years of Roosevelt's administration had established 90,000 new offices.

He ridiculed the present tender solitude which the Republicans were expressing for the Confederate soldier, as contrasted with their treatment of them in the days of reconstruction.

Captain McCaul said that Mr. Glass had begun his speech with forty-five years ago and had ended with the same period. He said he thought it best to let the past take care of itself and look to the future. Protection was the fundamental principle of the Republican party. His speech was largely a contrast of conditions under Democratic protection, which under Democratic administration, one could now buy with the hide of a calf what it formerly took the whole calf to buy. He alluded to the votes of the Virginia members of Congress on the recent tariff legislation in Congress as an illustration, he contrasted conditions in that city in 1896 with the present time, much to the disparagement of the former. He said that the Democrats had promised, when they called the Constitutional Convention, not to disfranchise any white man, and that they had disfranchised 10,000 of them.
He read a letter showing that the pension appropriation had been exhausted, and that applicants were not now being paid, and this despite the boast that there was a surplus in the Treasury. Passing to Judge Mann, he read extracts from the Richmond Evening Journal attacking Judge Mann during the recent primaries.

Captain McCaul told a number of jokes to illustrate points in his speech, and the crowd, including Mr. Glass himself, good-naturedly laughed at them. Mr. Glass in his rejoinder showed the fallacy of McCaul's charge that Democratic administrations brought adversity. He quoted market reports showing that in McKinley's administration, corn, wheat and oats and other products had sold at low prices. Referring to the last financial panic, which came in Roosevelt's administration, he said that there had not been a panic in the United States which had not started under a Republican tariff.

The debate passed off very pleasantly, there being few personalities. Mr.
Glass's speeches were strong in facts and figures, while McCaul's speech seemed to have pleased the few Republicans.

A New Baby.

A New Baby! What magic, what mystery, what charm these words have for us. Yet, how infinitely more they mean to the mother. A new life; short, to be sure, but full of possibilities. Some one must be patient, hopeful, watchful, proud and never discouraged. That "some one" is the mother. She has heard her baby's first cry, and whether it be her first or tenth, the feeling is the same. Her feeble arms are out-stretched; those arms that will never desert it as long as the mother shall live. And that hand which supports the head of the new-born babe, the mother's hand, supports the civilization of the world.
Is it any wonder, we ask you, mothers, that with all these responsibilities resting upon your all too weak shoulders, we urge upon you the necessity of selecting the babe's medicine with utmost care; the necessity of protecting your babe from worthless, unknown and narcotic drugs as you would protect it from the fire?
